

we did not count sufficiently on the weather-cock character of that policy. The Premier was hardly in his grave before the Cabinet reversed the decision which he and Manteuffel had procured and adopted in the cabinet. In fact, the execution of it is already considerably advanced, and ere this hour the whole available regular force of Prussia is under arms. This includes the Landwehr, or the body of soldiers who have served their time in the ordinary army and have passed into the reserve; they still remain enrolled for service, and are regularly assembled for drill a fortnight yearly, and every second year a month. In case of war they become again a part of the regular force and serve like other parts of the army. By means of this arrangement all parts of it are called out is about 600,000 men, giving 450,000 for active operations and 150,000 to occupy the garrisons of the Kingdom.

Now we have no idea that the Government mean to make war any more than they have done hitherto. They know as well as ever that Democracy will follow in the track of every advancing column and snatch the fruit of victory or defeat alike. They are assured that however such a war may turn out as far as the fighters are concerned, the spoils will be carried off by the common antagonist of both parties. Therefore they will try to avoid it at whatever cost, even the surrender of their own ambition and the humiliation of Prussia. This they have already shown again and again.

On the other hand the people of Prussia, and of all Germany as well, are inflamed with thirst for war. They feel most bitterly the disgrace which the Government was about to inflict on them, and have now grasped their arms with frantic eagerness. The insolent demands of Austria, the dictation of Russia fire them with ardor almost irresistible. They have no fear of Democracy. They care not for the vague forms that tower like avenging furies above the whirlwind of the on-coming contest, threatening a terrible requital for the crimes of Kings, the slaughter of noble defenders of liberty, and the plunder of the patient masses. Their sole and absorbing wish is to wipe off the disgrace of Germany, to crush the insolence of foreign tyrants. And this impulse seems so general and enthusiastic that it may well be doubted whether it can be checked or suppressed. The Ministry are now at the mercy of the moment, for any accident, trifling in itself, may begin the war which they and all their like have so long anticipated with fear and trembling.

Austria on her part is in a desperate condition. Already past the verge of bankruptcy she has no time to lose if she would make good her pretensions to predominance in Germany. Her army cannot long be maintained unless by some means she gains new strength. She must do what she has to do speedily. She has nothing to lose and everything to gain. Moreover she can keep her soldiers more cheaply in an enemy's country than at home. She is then all ready for the struggle. Bavaria goes with her hoping to grow great on the ruins of Russia, and Wurtemberg and Saxony will do the same. For the huge army of Prussia stands behind them and the strong hand of the Czar pushes them forward.

Such, very briefly stated, is the condition of this whole matter. The probabilities seem much more in favor of war than we have before supposed, not because the policy of the Governments has changed, but because the Prussian people are in arms and cannot easily be restrained. Still Frederick William, Manteuffel and their conditors will spare no effort and shrink from no business in order to escape the danger, and it is quite possible that they may succeed.

Kinkel Safe in London.

We learn that a private letter was received here by the Europa, containing a postscript which announced the safe arrival in that city of Kinkel, the poet-patriot, lately escaped from the Prussian dungeon of Spandau. We trust that this report is true. It caused great joy among the Germans of the City yesterday.

ILLINOIS—The new Legislature of this State is divided politically as follows:

Senate—Whig 20, Free Soil 17, Opposition 17. House—Whig 48, Free Soil 42, Opposition 42.

Twelve of the majority of the House were elected by and will vote for the next U. S. Senator. Of these 4 are Whigs.

Among the majority of the House we note the names of Hon. Zadoc Casey, formerly M. C. and Hon. Sidney Broome, late U. S. Senator.

CONGRESS—In the last district, Hon. William H. Bissell, present Member, had no opponent. In the 11th, (late M. C.) Willis Allen has 3,763 votes to 4,816 for Davis—both Opponents.

In the 11th, Richard Yates, Whig, has 7,008 votes to 6,254 for Hon. Thomas L. Harris, (Opposition) late Member. This district gave Taylor 8,188, Cass 6,687, Van Buren 712. Mr. Yates is the only Whig Congressman from the State.

The Official Returns from the remaining Districts are not before us.

WISCONSIN—The new Legislature of this State is divided politically as follows:

Senate—Whig 3, Free Soil 2, Opposition 14. House—Whig 48, Free Soil 42, Opposition 42.

Gov. Henry Dodge will of course be re-elected to the U. S. Senate. He is a decided Free Soiler, though not of the special Free Soil party.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT—We were mistaken some days since, in stating that Senator GEDDES's proposition to leave the time of execution of capital sentences discretionary with the Governor, was made at the last Session of the Legislature. It was made at the preceding Session—that of 1849—of course, not to the present Senate. We hope it may be renewed and favorably regarded.

FROM ST. VINCENTS—By a late arrival, we have received files of the New Era, published at Kingston, St. Vincent, W. I. There was nothing new on the island except a Temperance meeting.

Steamers at Halifax.

The steamer Falcon, five days from Bermuda, has arrived. She experienced heavy gales. The schooner Anne Doyle, from Boston for California, arrived at Bermuda on the 15th inst.

Western Steamboats—Two Destroyed by Fire and Three Sunk.

CINCINNATI, Saturday, Nov. 30. The steamboat Greenway, from Arkansas, was wrecked at the former place, caught fire near the stern, and was soon so much consumed that it was necessary to scuttle and sink her. The flames spread to the steamboat Swallow, an old stern-wheel boat, which was also destroyed. The Greenway belonged to Capt. Timms and was insured for $5,000. The Swallow was worth about $20,000, and was raised, prepared for the Swallow, was saved by the aid of the steamer Swallow, which towed it out of the way.

Three of our largest Western steamers have been sunk within the last few days, on their way to New Orleans, viz: The Griffin Yeatman, Fashion, and Cincinnati. The latter, after throwing aboard 400 bbls. of pork, was raised. The Griffin Yeatman was sunk by a fire in the boiler, the others will also probably be raised. The Griffin Yeatman, we learn, sprung her plank while lying in French Island dock. She had about four feet of water in her hold, which had nearly been pumped out; and it was thought that, as the river was rising, she would soon float. The Cincinnati, which has arrived at Louisville from Cincinnati, reports that it is doubtful as to whether the Fashion can be raised. Holly Raper, a large grocery merchant here, died yesterday afternoon.

The Burning of the Steamboat Columbus—Great Loss of Life.

BALTIMORE, Saturday, Nov. 30. The burning of the steamboat Columbus, off Point Lookout, which was telegraphed yesterday, was accompanied with the following melancholy loss of life: Capt. Hollingshead, Littleton S. Godwin, (the mate), the mate's son, and five of the hands of the boat, all perished in the flames.

Great Hurricane on the Mississippi—Dreadful Loss of Life and Property.

LOUISVILLE, Saturday, Nov. 30. One of the most appalling and destructive tornadoes which has been experienced in the Mississippi Valley for several years, occurred about 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

It swept over the town of Cape Girardeau, Mo., situated on the Mississippi river, just below St. Louis, and demolished some seventy or eighty buildings, many of them the finest and principal business houses in the place.

The Baptist and Catholic Churches, and the Catholic Convent were destroyed.

Two of the large and splendid telegraph masts belonging to the St. Louis and New-Orleans telegraph companies were cracked, shivered, and brought to the ground with as much ease as though they had been pipe stems.

The steamboat Saranac, No. 2, which had just rounded at the wharf, had her upper works completely blown off, and several persons on her were severely injured, and some, it is probable, were drowned.

The wharf boat was likewise blown from her moorings, and almost irreparably injured.

In order that you may judge of the tremendous violence of the storm, I will state that a cow was unceremoniously lifted off her feet on terra firma, and deposited in the top of a tree, 60 feet from the ground.

The loss of life, by this awful visitation, cannot yet be ascertained, but it is certainly very great, as many persons were buried beneath the ruins of the fallen buildings. There are also a great many persons who are seriously injured, and some of them so crippled and maimed that they will never recover from the effects.

The town is literally torn in pieces, and looks truly woe-begone. Many citizens, who were this morning to be seen with light hearts and smiling faces, are to-night wrapped either in the arms of death, or else are weeping for their friends who have been thus untimely swept away.

The Late Fatal Railroad Accident.

BATAVIA, N. Y. Saturday, Nov. 30. The man who was yesterday killed, by the collision between the express train from Buffalo and the emigrant train from Rochester, was an emigrant on his way to the West. He had a child in his arms, which escaped without injury. The persons who were injured will all recover. The train going West was under slow motion; the other was making ordinary time; on an inclined plane of thirty feet to a mile at the point where the collision occurred, a reverse curve, and a piece of wood prevented the Engineer from seeing the approach of the train from the distance.

The Engineers and firemen of both trains jumped off before the collision, and thereby escaped.

Freshet and Suspension of Canal Navigation.

FULTON, N. Y. Saturday, Nov. 30. The Oswego River has risen to such a height, that Canal navigation is suspended until the water goes down.

Ransom of Alleged Slaves.

NEW ALBANY, N. Y. Saturday, Nov. 30, 1850.

A man, his wife and two children, who were so white that there was not the most remote suspicion that they had African blood in their veins, were arrested a few days since, as runaway slaves from Arkansas. A contribution was got up, and they were ransomed to day. New Albany alone raised $375 of the purchase money. What is a little singular in this case is, that this family, (consisting of father, and mother, son and daughter) had been living here for several months, and had associated exclusively with white people, and the son, a bright lad, had been attending school. They state, that they were some time ago enticed on board of a steamer, where they were detained on the charge of being runaway slaves, but that they were set on shore some fifty miles below here, and eventually found their way back. The woman tells a rather singular and improbable story, which in substance, is as follows: She is a native of Baltimore, and she married her first husband, who took her to the wilds of Arkansas. The Indians killed her husband, and made her and her daughter prisoners. She says that she lived with the red men a great length of time. Our citizens were much excited in their behalf, and there was not much difficulty in getting sufficient money to pay for them.

LATER FROM BALTIMORE—Advises from Rio Janeiro to Oct. 16, state that the difficulty between Brazil and the Government of Buenos Ayres still continues. Gen. Guido, the minister of the latter country, had demanded his passports and left. On the 11th of October the remains of the late Thomas J. Morgan and those of his son, were removed from Gamboa to the frigate Bradwinie. Hon. David Tod and Mr. Yates, Secretary of Legation, were present at the ceremony.

From the Plains.

Two gentlemen reached this city yesterday morning from St. Paul in the steamer Excelsior, who have been on a hunting and exploring expedition over the Plains, and as far north as the settlements of Selkirk and Pembina, on the Red River of the North. They arrived at St. Paul in the morning of the 29th inst. The Excelsior, of the 14th inst. in the following manner:

"Two gentlemen of Her Majesty, Queen Victoria's Guards, Hon. Edward Stewart Wortley and Hon. W. Coke, have just arrived in St. Paul, on their return from a hunt in the Buffalo ranges of the Red River of the North, having been absent on a tour of the North, and the English to the report of the unusual success of their party, having seen as many as 200 buffalo cows killed in a single fortnight drive by a party of 50 horsemen, mostly half-breeds. The hunters swept over the range far north-west of Devil's Lake, killing all the buffalo they desired."

In addition, we learn from these gentlemen that they left St. Paul, on the 23d of August, with a party consisting of only five persons, and, after many singular adventures, innumerable incidents, hardships, &c. intermixed with a great deal of genuine sport, they were so fortunate as to escape all danger from hostile Indians, and returned after a three month's trip, safely to St. Paul, where they arrived on the 12th inst. During the trip they visited Fort Gary, Selkirk, Pembina, and the English trading post and environs about 3,000. They represent that far-off country in a quiet state, and the inhabitants are friendly and hospitable.

The inhabitants of Selkirk were in a partial state of revolt against usurpations and restrictions imposed upon their commerce by the Hudson Bay Company, and unless something is done by the British government to relieve their grievances it is thought that an open eruption will ultimately take place. Emigrants going west on the Pacific, and from a small trading post, Pembina, the American settlement has risen to a place of some importance, and now contains, as by the recent census taken, 1,200 inhabitants.

Messrs. Wortley & Coke bring no news of importance. On their return they were delayed at Fort Gary, by the loss of a horse, and the whole country having been burnt by the Indians, large war parties of whom were constantly moving in almost every direction. After a few days sojourn in this city, Messrs. W. & C. will proceed to New Orleans, and with thence, in all probability, sail direct for England.

(St. Louis Intelligencer, Nov. 22.)

FROM THE RIO GRANDE—A brutal murder was committed on the 24th ult. on the person of an old man 60 years of age, the aged father of a young man, who was passing by the river, and was killed by a party of Indians. The body was found floating in the river, and was recovered by a party of Indians. The murder was committed by a party of Indians, and the body was found floating in the river, and was recovered by a party of Indians.
